What makes us different?

- World-leading mediation trainers

Our courses are led by CEDR's Mediation Training Faculty — widely considered the most experienced body of mediation trainers in the world. All of our trainers are practising mediators, who draw on their experience to teach the skills and process of mediation from a practical and pragmatic view point.

- Experts in adult learning

As most participants on our mediation skills training courses are experienced professionals, CEDR trainers are not only experienced mediators but also experienced trainers, skilled in the techniques of adult learning.

- Extensive coaching and feedback

During our courses, we provide one-on-one and small group coaching and feedback to maximise the opportunity for participants to develop their mediation skills. This is achieved through exercises and realistic and challenging case studies, based on real-life situations.

- Blended learning & on-going support

Recognising that adults learn differently, CEDR provides the opportunity for skills and knowledge to be developed before the course, through CEDR's Handbook and the Mediation Simulator, on the course, through working with our experts and other participants, and post course, through our seminar series.
